Phone Subscribers Midenium In Only Four to Five Years

TEL AVIV. — Telephone subscribers will have no cause for complaints in just another four or five years, by that time the Post Office engineers will have completed the national telephone network and will have time to attend to breakdowns.

This encouraging prospect was held out on Friday by the chief engineer of the Telephone Service, Mr. J. Goy, in an address at the Engineers' Club.

Mr. Goy stressed that the Post, best engineers and technicians are busy working on the plan to install the 70,000 new phones over the next four to five years, and laying the lines to serve them. Current breakdowns in the system are not fully attended to because of the shortage of skilled personnel.

Equipment Approved by I.T.U.

He went on to say that the telephone equipment was recommended and approved by the International Telecommunications Union, and the various types and systems are functioning properly together. There is no truth in the allegations that the multiplicity of systems is a cause of breakdowns.

"A current series of articles in 'Ha'aretz' claims that all of the network's troubles derive from the impossibility of coordinating the many different kinds of equipment in use."

He blamed the public for the failure of the Post to repair many breakdowns promptly and for the inflated bills the subscriber subsequently complains about. The Post Office made every effort to simplify complaint procedure, but the public has not responded.

Minor Can't Sign For Registered Letter

TEL AVIV. — District Court Judge Y. Lamm sharply criticized the Post Office on Friday for accepting the signature of a 13-year-old boy on the receipt for a registered letter addressed to his father from the income tax authorities.

Judge Lamm granted the request of a Tira village farmer, Said Mahmoud Mansour, to extend the deadline for an appeal of the assessment sent by the National Agency because it had not reached him.

"The very fact that one dares to be contemptuous of the rights of the citizen and to hand over assessments to minors is sufficient basis for me to credit the applicant's request, so long as sufficient evidence is brought to the contrary," said the Judge.

Judge Lamm instructed that a copy of his decision be sent to the Minister of Posts.

The decision of the District Court Registrar and decided to extend the deadline for submitting an appeal until 10 days after Mansour receives notice of his assessment. (Tm)

Screen Writers, Broadway Actors End Strikes

HOLLYWOOD (Register). — The five-month-old strike of screenwriters ended Friday night when the Writers Guild of America reached agreement on a new contract with the big Hollywood studios.

The Guild governing council recommended its members to accept the producers' offer.

Under terms agreed, writers would get a 10 per cent increase in pay for the first two years — the starting salary is now $350 weekly — would get their first pension, health and welfare plans. They would also get a percentage of sales of films sold to TV.

Sex Cult Broken By Indonesian Army

JAKARTA (Reuters). — A sex cult whose creed includes wife-dropping, infanticide, rape, nude dancing and murder of believers has been crushed in a blood-bath in a small West Java town because its members believed they were bullet-proof.

Troops sent in to restore order at first fired over the heads of the advancing cultists. But when about 80 of them came on screaming war cries and looting, the soldiers fired into them, killing 22 and wounding 18. Among the dead was their leader.

Forty-eight were detained. Three soldiers and a village guard were killed and a policeman was critically wounded.

The showdown came on June 4 and delayed reports reaching here say it followed the murder by the sect of three members of investigating troops.

The sect, known as "hukuk", was founded in the village of Tjirong, near Bandung, by a 28-year-old self-styled prophet named Nawawi.

Nawawi told his followers that he had permission from God to marry three virgins. Believers were to divorce their partners and then dance together naked at night in a local mosque. During the dance, they would choose new husbands or wives for themselves.

Should any couple previously married come together again in the dark, the husband would be regarded as a holy man.

Nawawi told his male followers they had permission to rape the wives of his opponents.

Israel Scout Group Off on U.S. Visit

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA. — A group of 10 scouts, led by Israel's Chief Scout, Mr. Aron Krach, left for a four-month visit to the U.S. in the s.s. Shen Friday.

Four of the group have been invited to represent Israel at the American Scout's Jubilee Jambooree at Colorado Springs. They include a Moslem scout, the "half" of the party, 16-year-old Mohammed Ishtayeh of Uman in Fa-him. All the other members are 17 years old, an age group not represented among Arab scouts.

The second group, comprising four boys and two girls, have been invited by the Young Judaea movement to attend their summer camps in various parts of the U.S. The scouts will visit the Israeli Scouts at a different camp.

The 10 lucky scouts were chosen by a special committee. Each contributed $1,200 towards the cost of the trip.

Lack of Purpose in Life, Insecurity, Seen Main Cause of Youthful Vandalism

By A Special Correspondent

In England, they are called "Teddy Boys"; in the Federal Republic of Germany, they are the Hulstertoten (the half-matured); in France, Blousons noirs (black jackets); in Poland and the Soviet Union, "Hooligans"; in Italy, Widons (fat calves); in Australia and New Zealand, Rockers and Widons (girls); in South Africa, Totes; in Japan, Mambo Boys.

A report issued for a forthcoming U.N. meeting says that the most important new type of juvenile delinquency, found in nearly all parts of the world, is the formation of juvenile gangs which commit delinquent acts.

Juvenile delinquency in general, says the report, is on the increase in most countries, and particularly the "new" forms of delinquency, such as auto theft, traffic violations, vandalism, sex delinquency, alcoholism and drug addiction, in addition to gang activity.

The report entitled "New Forms of Juvenile Delinquency: Their Origin, Prevention and Treatment" was prepared by Judge Wolf Meisendorff of the Federal Republic of Germany, from material obtained from government officials, organizations and experts in various countries. It will be placed before the Second United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime and the Treatment of Offenders, to meet in London in August.

The report shows the increasing gravity of the juvenile delinquency problem as a whole. In the U.S., the Federal Bureau of Investigation has stated that, according to the latest available figures, 47 per cent of the more serious crimes are committed by juveniles. A report to the U.S. Senate by a subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency noted the annual increase in court appearances and stated that, according to the figures then available, some 20 per cent of male adolescents in the 10-17 age group in the U.S. had a delinquency record in 1960.

In the Philippines, according to the report, the problem of juvenile delinquency has increasingly become acute so that public opinion is alarmed at the growing menace to the social order. A rapid rise in juvenile delinquency was also reported from England and Wales, the Union of South Africa, Australia and New Zealand. The Federal Republic of Germany, Austria, Greece, Yugoslavia, France, Sweden, Finland and the German Democratic Republic. However, some decline was reported from Switzerland, Italy, Belgium and Canada.

In most countries, the problem of repeaters was considered serious. A high correlation was seen between early delinquency and later adult habitual criminality.

Group Delinquency
In recent years, says the report, there has been a growing tendency among juveniles to commit delinquent acts in groups.

In some countries, mass rioting has occurred. The report notes that during the years 1955-1957 the Federal Republic of Germany saw a series of "excesses" by juvenile groups. These riots "arose spontaneously" in 1955 and were seen the centre of public interest. Suddenly they occurred in the form of juvenile groups. A study of the "Teddy Boys" in England showed that they were not lacking in intelligence nor in money. But "there was a very evident feeling of cynicism about the future, and all their thinking. Life lacked a real purpose for them and a real security."

great purpose of the same sort in the world today. The study described their anti-social behaviour and said: "This sort of group movement must fill us with unease. Quite obviously society must protect itself against such lawless tendencies, and it must also try to solve the basic problem of why such groups come into being in such widely scattered areas."

Related problems were reported from India, where there were such incidents as hunger strikes by students seeking redress of their grievances, processions in protest against stiff standards of examinations, failures, and so on, and group rivalries among students resulting in serious clashes.

In the Union of South Africa, it was stated, the behaviour of the white "Dreiklappers" and the coloured "Bantustans" and the African "Totals" was "a phenomenon which stands in sharp contrast to the behaviour of the white and coloured middle class."

Other offences dealt with include vandalism, or wanton destruction of property, which was reported on the increase in many countries. Offences against property mainly concerned the theft of bicycles and autos, but a particular problem was reported from Israel in fruit stealing not for eating on the spot but "for the sake of stealing."

The report also noted the increase in the number of offences committed by juveniles in Israel. The stealing of fruit, necessarily done in a hurry, often resulted in damage to the trees, it was stated, and in the circumstances of the state.

is of importance not only to the individual owner of the trees but to the public at large. On the subject of sex delinquency, reports from New Zealand said that younger groups were now affected, ages ranging from 12 to 15 years, and that girls had become the principal offenders in many cases. Also, the practice was now "organized" in a way not evident before.

In France, offences against public morals increased by 60 per cent among those under 13 between 1952 and 1957. Belgium also found younger age groups involved. Other countries where an increase in sex delinquency was reported were Japan, Australia, Sweden and Argentina.

More alcoholism and drug addiction among juveniles were also reported from many countries.

Research and Prevention
The report lists some of the factors considered to be causing juvenile delinquency, including poverty and lack of channels for directing the youthful drive for expression and achievement, but it notes that "criminologists almost unanimously agree that the influence of the family is of the utmost importance, particularly in the highly developed countries."

"Factors in this growing process of dissolution of family life are the crises in authority, so-called progressive education, the conflict of parental authority and the influence of some trends in psychology," the report states.

Sammy Davis, the world-famous Negro entertainer who embraced Judaism last year, is seen here with Swedish actress Mai Britt. They announced that they will marry in September, as soon as Miss Britt's divorce from her present husband comes through.

Nussli, a Swiss-Israeli born in 1902, is a flautist; the solo part is written perfectly for the instrument, giving the soloist the chance to "show off" his brilliant gifts. Hanchel Tel-Oren gave it a faultless performance, lending his good musician-ship, beautiful tone and impressive technique to the pleasant interpretation of the concerto, which is unpretentious but breathes the joy of music-making in every phrase.

Itali Braker, the assistant leader of the orchestra, was the soloist in the Shubert Concerto. He attacked the part with a big tone and a vigorous technique, but the intricacies of the work were slightly above his abilities and his approach to the musical demands too free in tempo changes and too little zinginess as regards stylistic interpretation in general.

The orchestra was in good shape throughout the evening.
